

Flattening the Curve

“Never let a serious crisis go to waste, they say, so I’m using this time to create a new series, Covid Blues (Art for the Quarantined Soul). Inspired by Picasso during his Blue Period, the 14-day visual diary uses repurposed materials found around the house, created in monochromatic shades of blue.” Ruby Silvius

Using recycled materials during her quarantine at home, this artist’s talent is extraordinary. See more of her work here. Maybe she will inspire you to take some time out to create your own exhibition.

“Shelter in Place”

Many of us could relate to a surplus of art supplies for this project. I just need the paint.

“Shellshocked”